

APPOINTMENTS

Shulamith Berlin, a graduate of the Training School for Jewish Social Work, is doing rehabilitation work among the victims of the August riots in Jerusalem.

Rose Cohen, as case worker at the Jewish Children's Clearing Bureau, New York.

Dr. Zvi Cohen, as executive director of the United Talmud Torahs of Montreal, attended by 1300 children.

Viola S. Deutsch, as executive secretary, Council of Jewish Women, New York.

Rose Drapkin, as psychiatric social worker at the Council Home for Jewish Girls in Brooklyn.

Ben M. Edidin, for the last seven years director of the extension department of the Chicago Board of Jewish Education, as director of the Buffalo Bureau of Jewish Education.

Samuel Goldsmith, executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, has been named director of the Chicago Federation of Jewish Charities. Mr. Goldsmith, a past president and past secretary of the National Conference of Jewish Social Service, was a former general secretary of the council of Y. M. H. A's and organizing secretary of the Jewish Welfare Board for welfare work in the United States Army and Navy.

Dorothy Davis Gordon, as case worker at the Hunt's Point office of the Jewish Social Service Association of New York.

Dr. Louis L. Kaplan, graduate of Columbia University and Dropsie College, was appointed executive director of the Board of Jewish Education and head of the Hebrew College, Baltimore. Dr. Kaplan was until April 1st religious director of the Foster Home for Hebrew Orphans, Philadelphia.

Betty Rosenberg, formerly secretary of the Jewish Welfare Federation of Louisville and supervisor of the Associated Charities of Cincinnati as case supervisor of the Girls' Bureau of Pittsburgh.

Philip Ruby, as director of boys' work at the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mrs. Helen Shapiro, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, as investigator of the family welfare department of the Jewish Educational Institute of Kansas City.

Genia Sidransky, as case worker of the Jewish Family Welfare Association of Pittsburgh.

Isidore Sobeloff, formerly director of public relations of the New York Federation, as director of the New York office of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

RALPH ASTROFSKY, who probably knows more about "trombenicks" than anyone else in the country, is secretary of The Committee on Homeless of New York City.

LUDWIG B. BERNSTEIN, PH. D., was a leading figure in the child care field before he became executive director of the Pittsburgh Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

DR. JULIUS DRACHSLER, author, educator, social scientist, was engaged in writing a book on race prejudice at the time of his untimely death three years ago.

SAMUEL GERSON is executive director of the Jewish Welfare Federation and executive secretary of the Jewish Community Center of Omaha.

JACOB KEPECS is superintendent of the Jewish Home Finding Society of Chicago.

OSCAR LEONARD is executive director of the Jewish Welfare Federation of Washington.

H. L. LURIE is superintendent of the Jewish Social Service Bureau of Chicago.

LOUIS A. LURIE, M.D., is a prominent psychiatrist of Cincinnati, actively associated with local Jewish social work, serving as director of the mental hygiene activities maintained by the United Jewish Social Agencies.

JACOB MIRVISS is at present executive director of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association of New Haven. After his graduation from the Training School for Jewish Social Work in 1927 he served for a time as director of boys' work at the Jewish Community Center of Omaha.

MARY PALEVSKY, as executive director of the Brooklyn Jewish Social Service Bureau, is intimately acquainted with the field of juvenile delinquency.

KURT PEISER is executive secretary of the United Jewish Social Agencies of Cincinnati which is engaging in a number of interesting experimental pieces of social work.

A. Z. PITTLER is director of the Jewish Big Brother Club of Pittsburgh.

GEORGE W. RABINOFF, in his capacity of director of Field Service and secretary of the Personnel Advisory Committee, of the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, has had a unique opportunity of observing the standards of personnel and performance in Jewish social work in this country.

LILY SCHINDELMAN is director of women's activities at the Jewish Community Center of Akron, Ohio.

WILLIAM J. SHRODER, retired attorney, holds among many other offices, the presidency of the Cincinnati Board of Education and the chairmanship of the budget committee of the local Community Chest. As the chairman of the National Appeals Information Service he is largely responsible for the success that has attended the work of that body thus far.

FRED J. STERN, a member of the 1928 class of the Training School for Jewish Social Work, is in charge of the Big Brother Association of Cleveland.

LEON STERN, research secretary of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs, Philadelphia, is well known to our readers through his contributions on the subject of crime and punishment.

MAURICE TAYLOR is director of General District Service, the family welfare department of the Boston Associated Jewish Philanthropies.

ELIAS L. TROTZKEY has been for many years the executive director of the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan Home of Chicago.

IRA S. WILE, M.D., an authority in the field of child training, is on the staff of Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, and is a member of the faculty of Columbia University.